

Fluor Corporation (NYSE:FLR) Publishes 2013 Sustainability Report

Global engineering, procurement, construction, maintenance and project management company Fluor Corporation has published its 2013 Sustainability Report, "Beyond the Blueprint: Growing Sustainably," available online at fluor.com/sustainrep.

This marks Fluor's sixth annual sustainability report, where the company outlines progress in the key focus areas of Ethics & Compliance; Governance; Employees & Workplace; Health, Safety & Environment; Community & Social Service; and Supply Chain & Procurement.

Notable 2013 sustainability accomplishments include:

- Being named one of the World's Most Ethical Companies by Ethisphere Magazine for the eighth consecutive year.
- Ensuring the global fight against corruption is sustained through collective action, actively engaging business, government and civil society to work together to address corruption in the private and public sectors through work with the G20/B20 Task Force on Improving Transparency and Anti-Corruption and the World Economic Forum's Partnering Against Corruption Initiative.
- Ranking number one in the engineering and construction sector on Fortune Magazine's "Most Admired Companies" list.
- Initiating widespread tracking of specific measures related to energy, water, waste, material use and community support to provide better analytics to guide economic, environmental and social performance.
- Achieving a 50-percent reduction in the company's normalized carbon footprint over an eight-year period.
- Improving communities through company, employee and Fluor Foundation donations of $4.9 million in financial support to philanthropic community initiatives and programs, and more than 44,800 employee volunteer hours dedicated to community projects around the globe.
