

Wyndham Worldwide (NYSE:WYN) publishes 2013 Sustainability Responsibility Report

In Wyndham Worldwide's fourth year of formal sustainability reporting, its 2013 Sustainability Responsibility Report details its strong, industry-leading commitment to socially and environmentally responsible business practices, including reducing its operationally controlled asset water usage globally by 16 percent per square foot and its carbon emissions by 13 percent per square foot from the 2010 baseline, and of its $2.1 billion supply chain, 25 percent meets the Wyndham Green criteria. Wyndham Worldwide is one of the first hospitality companies to use the progressive G4 Sustainability Reporting Structure to report its economic, environmental and social performance.

During the past eight years, Wyndham Worldwide has continued to develop its sustainability practices and innovation through its Wyndham Green program. The program is focused on education, and is a way of living and working based on the Company's vision and core values, enhancing customers' lives by improving the environment, supporting our global and local communities, and developing sustainable programs that deliver economic benefits. The Company has stayed true to the belief that it can do well by doing good.

With a goal to reduce emissions by 20 percent by 2020, Wyndham Green works to engage stakeholders and drive change in how Wyndham Worldwide operates. By combining the dedication and expertise of associates, franchisees, suppliers, businesses and partners, Wyndham Green provides the mechanism to turn innovative ideas into achievable results.

One of the world's largest hospitality companies, Wyndham Worldwide provides a broad range of accommodations, products, and services for both consumer travelers and business-to-business customers across the globe through its three business units: Wyndham Hotel Group, Wyndham Exchange & Rentals and Wyndham Vacation Ownership.
