

Rockwell Automation Publishes 2015 Corporate Responsibility Report

The Rockwell Automation 2015 Corporate Responsibility Report provides updates on the company's environmental, employee safety and culture, community relations performance and efforts. "For more than 112 years, Rockwell Automation has had a history of serving customers with technology innovation, deep domain expertise and a culture of integrity and social responsibility," said Keith D. Nosbusch, Rockwell Automation chairman and CEO.

Rockwell Automation is guided by its mission to improve the quality of life by making the world more productive and sustainable. The company supports their customers' efforts to operate more efficient and responsible businesses by helping them design, operate and maintain safe and secure operating environments; meet regulatory and environmental compliance requirements; and, ultimately, protect their reputations as suppliers of quality products and good stewards of the environment.

In 2015, Rockwell Automation was once again named one of the World's Most Ethical Companies by the Ethisphere Institute, and a member of the Dow Jones Sustainability North American Index. The company's safety performance remains among the best in our industry. Rockwell Automation is actively engaged in distinguishing our company as an inclusive organization where everyone can do their best work and within our communities, where we continue to invest in STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) education.
