

Arcadis publishes Sustainability Report 2015

Arcadis (Euronext: arcad), the leading global Design & Consultancy firm for natural and built assets, has published its first Sustainability Report. The report highlights a selection of the many projects through which Arcadis delivers on its passion to improve quality of life.

The pdf version of the report is available online via the Arcadis website at the following web address: <http://www.arcadis.com/sustainabilityreport2015>. Only a limited number of copies will be printed, providing environmental benefits such as reduced paper use and lower carbon emissions.

Arcadis CEO Neil McArthur said: "Climate change, water scarcity and urbanization are dynamic global issues which mean our clients' needs are constantly changing. This drives continuous innovation in Arcadis with new ways of working and new solutions to deliver positive impact and sustainable outcomes for our clients. With the launch of our first sustainability report we illustrate how we make a difference: the work we do with clients, how we operate our business and the activities of our people. I am extremely proud of all our work and to show these great examples in our report."
