CapitaLand's sustainability strategy is encapsulated in its credo of 'Building People. Building Communities.'. It shares the United Nations Global Compact's (UNGC) commitment to deliver lasting benefits to people, communities and markets, and became a signatory in 2015. Even before then, CapitaLand had been adopting universal principles on human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption, as well as taking strategic actions that advance the development of society.

It is committed to internationally accepted guidelines for sustainability performance and reporting. This report covers CapitaLand's international portfolio in over 20 countries, more than 12,700 staff, and outlines CapitaLand's corporate responsibility priorities that form the foundation of its global reporting approach on organisational, manufactured, environmental, human, and social and relationship capitals.
