

Do You Know What Sustainability Professionals Earn?

September 12, 2019 — Are you seeking to advance your own career or add additional environmental, health, safety and sustainability (EHS&S) staff to your team? If the answer is yes, then a competitive salary report of EHS&S professionals will be a key resource for you.

The 2019 report is based on 6,030 EHS&S professionals from a wide variety of private and public companies. Survey participants were full-time employees with varying scopes of responsibilities.

Conducted by EHS Careers and NAEM, the report features detailed analyses of how compensation is affected by education, certifications, career stage and industry.

Below are some of the key findings from this report:

- Corporate directors and managers are earning 7% more on average than they did in 2017
- Those with 11-15 years of experience are earning 6% more in 2019 than professionals with the same experience in 2017
- 66% of professionals surveyed are eligible for additional annual cash incentive bonuses

“Understanding the salary marketplace is a critical data point to retain and hire talent,” says NAEM’s Executive Director Carol Singer Neuvelt. “We hope you find the results beneficial as you seek to advance your own career or hire other professionals.”
